AL DAVIS

GENERAL MANAGER-HEAD COACH

3rd Year With Raiders

16th in Coaching

Born July 4, 1929, Brockton, Mass.

Syracuse, '50

Educated in Brooklyn at P.S. 189, Winthrop Junior High and Erasmus Hall High School, where he participated in football, basketball and baseball and was voted the most popular boy in his senior year, '47.

Attended Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio, and Syracuse Univ., taking a degree from the latter with a major in English. While at Wittenberg and Syracuse he participated in football, basketball and baseball and made the decision to become a football coach.

In '50, at the age of 20, after leaving Syracuse, he joined the staff at Adelphi College, New York. He worked principally with the line, and was published in coaching magazines with technical articles which gained him considerable attention in the coaching fraternity. He spent '51 at Adelphi and then went into the Army, being assigned as head football coach at Ft. Belvoir, Va. He moulded an outstanding service ball club which lost just two games during his two-season tenure and capped one season by beating the National Champion University of Maryland in a squad game.

After leaving the service, he served on the staff of the professional Baltimore Colts for one season ('54, age 24) devoting most of his time and energy to personnel scouting and recruiting. The Colts, then coached by Weeb Ewbank, became interested in Davis off his coaching job at Ft. Belvoir.

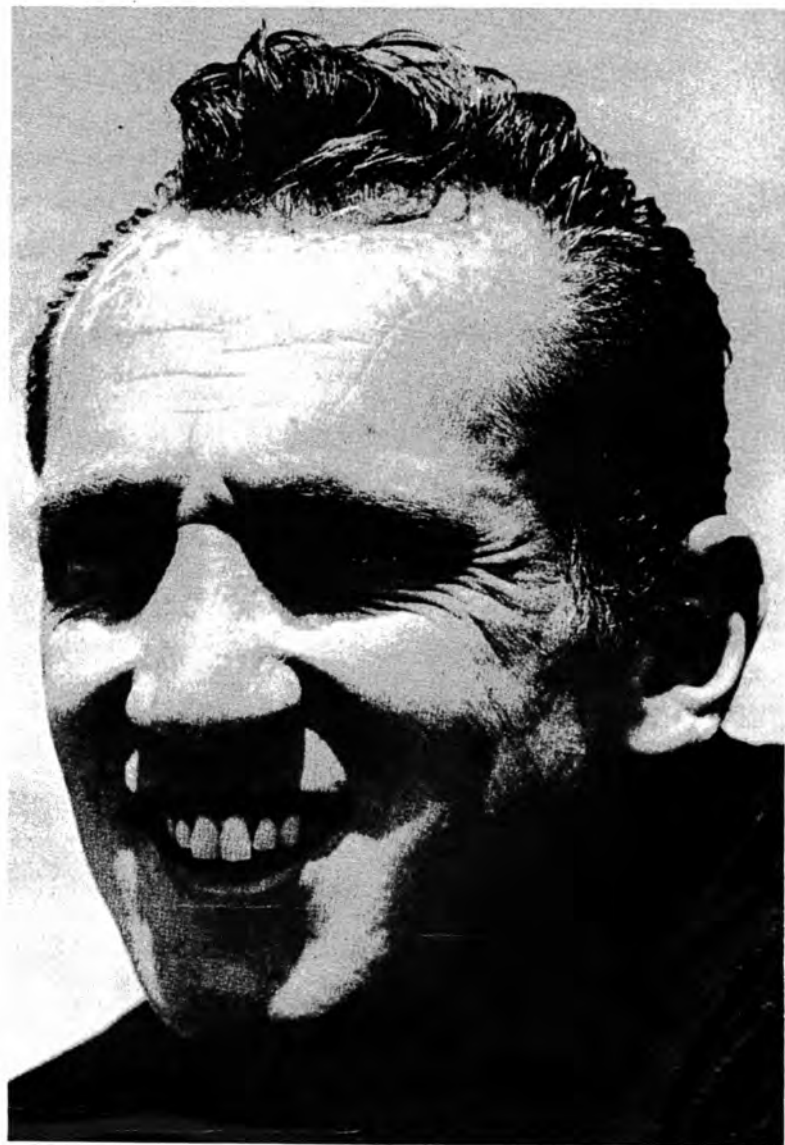

In '55-'56, Davis served as line coach and chief recruiter at The Citadel in Charleston, South Carolina, continuing his unique ideas and theories on line play which had first gained him reputé at Adelphi College.

Davis spent the '57-'58-'59 seasons at the University of Southern California, being the line coach and key assistant to head coach Don Clark. Here he sharpened his recruiting skills. In '59, he was in charge of the entire defense as well as the line.

In '60, when Sid Gillman was named head coach of the Los Angeles (now San Diego) Chargers, he hired Davis as his offensive end coach.

AL DAVIS

fight for collegiate talent kept the Chargers in the forefront among pro clubs.

In January, '63, he was hired as head coach and general manager of the Oakland Raiders. At 33, he was the youngest man in professional football holding down dual berths, but he had 14 years' experience, had been tabbed a "Young Genius" by Sports Illustrated and called "The most inventive football mind in the country" by Scholastic Coach.

The Raiders, who had won just one game in '62 and two in '61, were floundering on the field and in the front office. Davis effected a sweeping reorganization, hiring new front office personnel, a new coaching staff, and putting the club on a sound, professional operating basis. He relocated the club's office, obtained a new training camp at Santa Rosa, Calif., (the finest such facility in pro ball) and began rebuilding the team. He bought new players, traded for new players and signed several key free agents in establishing a foundation on which to build a winning club.

When the team opened the '63 season in Houston, Sept. 7, there was almost a 50 percent change in the 33-man roster from the previous season. The club had enjoyed its first-ever winning exhibition season (3-2) and defeated Houston in the league opener, another first. The club, the unanimous pre-season choice to finish last in the league, went on to post a 10-4 record, second only to champion San Diego's 11-3 mark. The club, writing a fantastic comeback story, was in the running for the league's Western Division title until the final week of play.

Davis was named '63 Coach of the Year by Associated Press, United Press, Sporting News and Seven-Up Digest. He was also named Oakland's Young Man of the Year, an annual award by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, which subsequently put his name in nomination for similar state and national honors. Davis is the first man from the field of athletics to win the award in Oakland.

While the club's record dipped to 5-7-2 in 1964, the Raiders nonetheless notched five victories and a tie in their final eight games and scored wins over the champion Buffalo Bills and Western Division champion San Diego. Davis also directed the Raiders to the finest draft in pro ball when the club signed eight of the first 10 players available to it.

Davis, whose mother and brother live in New York, is married to the former Carol Segall of Brooklyn. He has a son, Mark, 10.

NEXT YEAR: THE COLISEUM

It's been several years coming but loyal Raider fans will soon be viewing their favorite team in one of America's finest Stadiums.

The spectacular future home of the Oakland Raiders, a beautifully designed and functional three tier Stadium will be but one part of the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum Complex located adjoining the Nimitz Freeway near Hegenberger Road.

When completed in time for the 1966 season, the Coliseum Complex, now well under construction, will provide the Bay Area with the nation's most complete indoor-outdoor entertainment center. Combining a Stadium, indoor Arena and Exhibit Hall, it will be the only facility in the country capable of housing four major league franchises in football, baseball, basketball and ice hockey plus major shows as well.

The Coliseum is being built and operated by Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum Inc., a non-profit corporation. It is financed jointly by the City of Oakland and Alameda County, both of which will ultimately share all net revenues from Coliseum operations. The non-salaried Board of Directors of Coliseum Inc. are: Robert T. Nahas, President; Edgar F. Kaiser, Vice-President; William F. Knowland, Secretary; George C. Looz, Treasurer; Mayor Jack D. Maltester, John A. Ratekin and Judge Joseph A. Schenone. William A. Cunningham is the General Manager.

The Stadium portion of the complex will feature many good sideline seats for both baseball and football, each with an unobstructed view of the action. The Stadium provides over 48,000 seats for baseball and between 50,000 and 52,000 seats for Raider football.

The Coliseum's unique design for converting from baseball to football will keep Raider fans close to the exciting field action, and in addition over 35,000 good sideline seats will be available, nearly double the comparable locations in Youell Field.

Every aspect of the entire Complex has been planned with the fans in mind. Seating, both outdoors in the Stadium and indoors in the Arena, will be the finest in the nation. The colorful individual Stadium seats, of aluminum standards with flexible backs and self-rising seats of durable plastic, contoured into a "saddle-shape" for comfort, will be virtually maintenance-free. An added feature is the rounded edges of the seats, one of several aspects, including the lack of splinters, that add to the protection of clothing as well as comfort. There is also more-than-adequate leg-room between each row of seats. The Coliseum will be the first major Stadium in the country to feature these modern plastic seats.

Restrooms, drinking fountains and concessions stands are also planned for the fan's convenience. These aspects are best described by "many available and close to the seating areas."

The depressed Stadium bowl, combined with the entirely level parking lots, means the fans will enter in the middle of the main seating sections and be into and out-of their seats with very few steps of climbing involved.

In addition to the Stadium, the Complex also includes an indoor Arena, seating up to 15,000 persons. This beautiful glass enclosed show place will rise 100 feet above the freeway creating a magnificent landmark visible throughout the area. Featuring 11,000 permanent upholstered theatre-type seats, plus upholstered portable seats on risers, the Arena continues the Stadium theme of "comfort, closeness to the action and unobstructed sidelines." The shape of the Arena permanent seat bowl keeps the great majority of the seats as prime side-Arena seats.

The variety of events possible in the Arena include basketball, hockey, boxing, horse and ice shows, various trade shows, exhibitions, conventions, banquets and large scale social and cultural activities.

Features of the structure include special movable curtains for admitting or closing-off outside light, acoustical refinements in the ceiling structure, theatrical-type lighting for stage shows and spectaculars and a 200' x 85' ice floor.

The third major portion of the Complex is the Exhibit Hall. This adjoins the Arena floor at one end and the Stadium Club at the other, all on the same level. The roof of the Exhibit Hall will also serve as a connecting plaza between the Stadium and Arena.

The Complex has 120,000 square feet of indoor exhibit space and two outdoor exhibit areas totaling 53,000 square feet immediately adjacent to the Exhibit Hall, ideally suited for all types of exhibits, trade shows and conventions.

The parking lots, holding approximately 8000 automobiles and 300 buses, are designed in a quadrant system, serviced by a rotary road around the perimeter of the entire site. Traffic will enter the Complex from surface streets or directly from the freeway onto the rotary road and then fan out into the appropriate parking area. In addition to other road improvements in the area of the Coliseum, a new major interchange will be constructed at 66th Avenue on the Nimitz Freeway.

The Bay Area Rapid Transit District will also directly serve the Coliseum through its adjoining 73rd Street station. On Rapid Transit, Coliseum patrons can travel to the events in 16 minutes from downtown San Francisco and only 32 minutes from as far as Concord.

Freeway location, abundant parking, rapid transit and proximity to the Oakland International Airport all combine to make the 120 acre Coliseum site the most accessible center in the country. Over 4.2 million persons now live within 45 minutes of the Coliseum which is within a mile of the geographic center of population of the five county Bay Area. This figure will rise to 5 million by 1970 and ten years later it is expected that 6.3 million will be within quick and easy reach of the Complex.

The Stadium is scheduled for completion by August 25, 1966, in time for the full Raiders regular schedule. The Arena and Exhibit Hall will be finished about October 1, 1966.

All-in-all, the magnificent creature rising out of the ground along the Nimitz Freeway will provide an outstanding showcase for the widest range of sports and entertainment in the nation. Numerous shows already booked combined with good prospects for an American League baseball franchise and National League Hockey added to the exciting brand of A.F.L. football provided by the Raiders point to a bright future for our Coliseum and years of enjoyment for local fans.
